BOTH TOMS RAPPED

VERDICT following two days of questioning by the Randall County grand jury concerning A.W. Lair, criminal district attorney, was filed at approximately 4:10 p.m. Thursday by Harold Smith, grand jury foreman. Report censored accusations made by Tom James of General House Investigating Committee that Lair had neglected his duties following disbarment hearing on Roy Joe Stevens. James said Lair had not followed through on evidence presented at the hearing, to his knowledge. Report stated Lair "had in no way been derelict in charging the rull responsibility of his office . . . ." Mavis Hill, district clerk, at right of photo, filed the report in her office.

Grand Jury Clears Lair; Questions Report Aim

Randall County grand jury Thursday questioned the "good and proper motive and faith" of a House Investigating Committee report which took Criminal District Attorney Avent Lair to task.

The grand jury in effect lowered the boom on Representative Tom James who took full responsibility for the report.

The jurors "commended fully the thorough manner in which Mr. Lair has conducted the business of his office." They gave the district attorney not only a clean bill of health, but a pat on the back to boot.

The House report credited to James took Lair to task for what it termed failure to push criminal prosecution against former Judge Roy Joe Stevens.

The grand jury report came after two full days of probing into the Lair controversy which exploded when the House Investigating Committee filed its report in mid-August.

In a statement for publication following the grand jury report, Lair said he feels fully vindicated in the matter.

The district attorney said he was gratified with the findings of the grand jury which he said only bore out his contentions set forth in a statement after the House report made "glaring headlines in the Amarillo Globe-Times."

Lair said the information that he had repeatedly sought grand jury action in the Roy Joe Stevens case was readily available either to James or to Editor Tommy Thompson of The Globe-Times.

"I tried to bring it to their attention but I didn't get much of an ear as they continued their barrage," said the district attorney.

"If the Amarillo newspaper (obviously The Globe-Times) or Tom James had had the common courtesy to contact me at my office before the report was filed in Austin, they could have ascertained the facts."

"The first I knew of such a report (the one credited to James) was from glaring headlines (in The Globe-Times) saying I had been rapped," the DA continued.

Lair pointed out that the majority of the members of the grand jury are from Amarillo.

Thompson and James received star billing among the more than a dozen persons to testify. James was with the grand jury about an hour and a half and Thompson almost two hours.

Lair said many of the witnesses were questioned at length by the grand jury with Lair out of the room. "The grand jury directed its own investigation," he declared.

The district attorney commented that this was one of the most thorough grand juries he has ever seen.

For both Thompson and James the grand jury report was indeed a knuckle rapping.

James had vowed that he would present evidence to the grand jury which would almost certainly bear out his contention. He even went so far as to say the information he would supply probably would result in an indictment.

In his column in The Globe-Times, Thompson declared that Lair "goofed" in the Stevens matter.

Stevens resigned his post as Randall County judge and subsequently was disbarred following a crime probe by the House committee in Amarillo last year.

James was vice-chairman of the committee.

James contended just after the House report that he "had information" that the Stevens case was never presented to the grand jury after the crime probes in Amarillo. Lair declared that he twice presented the case to grand juries following the probe.

Several former Randall County grand jury foremen were among the some 16 witnesses paraded before the current grand jury during the two-day hearing.

Representative James could not be reached for comment late Thursday as The Canyon News prepared to go to press with an extra--the second paper it published this week.

Following is the full text of the grand jury report.

HONORABLE E. E. JORDAN:

This report relates to the deliberations and findings of the Randall County Grand Jury as consideration has been given to the portion of the report of the GENERAL HOUSE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES and its claim that there has been a failure of the Randall County District Attorney's Office to take action before the Grand Jury to obtain indictments against Mr. Roy Joe Stevens for criminal violations. The House Committee report has made the accusation that Mr. A. W. Lair, Criminal District Attorney of this county, has avoided the responsibility of taking action against Mr. Stevens for violations within Mr. Lair's jurisdiction.

Mr. A. W. Lair appeared before this Grand Jury to answer these charges. In addition, the following witnesses have appeared:

J. L. Pounds, Deputy Sheriff of Randall County

W. C. Longest, Deputy Seriff of Randall County

William A. Wilson, Justice of the Peace, Randall County

Frank Gilley, Deputy Sheriff of Randall County

L.S. Johnston, Sheriff of Randall County

Gordon Fielden, Former Grand Jury Foreman

Homer Kinsey, Former Grand Jury Foreman

Guy Hardin, Attorney, Shamrock and member of the Grievance Committee of the 18th Congressional District of the State Bar of Texas

W.C. Jarnagin, Former Grand Jury Foreman

Horace (Doc) Blanchard, Attorney, Lubbock, Former State Representative and former Chairman of the General House Investigation Committee

E.T. Cummings, Auditor, Randall County

S.B. Whittenburg, Publisher, Amarillo Globe Times

Tom James, State Representative from Dallas and member of the General Investigating Committee

Thomas H. Thompson, Editor, Amarillo Globe Times

Bruce Miller, Attorney, Hereford, Chairman of the Grievance Committee of the 18th Congressional District of the State Bar of Texas

After hearing the testimony of the above witnesses, the Grand Jury recalled the following witnesses to testify without Mr. Lair's being present:

Frank Gilley
L.S. Johnston
W.C. Jarnagin
Horace (Doc) Blanchard
Tom James
Thomas H. Thompson
Bruce Miller

In addition to hearing the testimony of the above witnesses the Grand Jury considered the testimony which had been offered in evidence before previous Grand Juries.

In the light of all the evidence considered it is the unanimous opinion of this Grand Jury that there has been no failure of law enforcement in Randall County and that Mr. A. W. Lair has been diligent and has in no way been derelict in discharging the full responsibility of his office as criminal District Attorney of Randall County. The Grand Jury wishes in this report to commend fully the thorough manner in which Mr. Lair has conducted the business of his office.

The Grand Jury also wishes to report on its feelings regarding the part of the report of the General House Investigating Committee which is hereby quoted:

"This Committee views with alarm the failure of the Randall County District Attorney's office to take action before the Grand Jury to obtain indictments against Stevens for these criminal violations. While District Attorney Avent Lair loudly protested that his office was being slandered by our hearings, not only the investigation by the Committee but, moreover, that of the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association makes clear that the Canyon District Attorney has a responsibility to take action against Stevens for violation within his jurisdiction. It is a responsibility as yet unmet. More than a year after the hearings closed, the case filed by the Grievance Committee, and Stevens disbarred, criminal prosecution by Randall County of the ex-judge is strangely lacking."

Although this report is signed by five members of the House of Representatives on the recommendation of Mr. Tom James, it is apparent that Mr. James prepared the report without the assistance of the other members. Mr. James does not hesitate to accept full responsibility for the report. Three of the representatives signing the report were not members of the committee when the investigation was held in Amarillo. Mr. Horace (Doc) Blanchard, who was chairman of the General House Investigating Committee when the hearings were conducted, did not participate in the preparation of the report. At no time did Mr. James contact the office of the Criminal District Attorney to ascertain if action had been taken in this office to handle matters relative to the prosecution of former Randall County Judge Roy Joe Stevens. The claimed "breakdown" of law enforcement in Randall County made in the House Committee report is based on the absence of facts which could have been in the hands of the Committee. It is difficult for this Grand Jury to believe that the part of the House Committee Report quoted above is evidence of good and proper motive and faith.

The report was signed by Bill D. Wood, H. R. Fulton, Jr., Harold Smith, C. F. Partain, Mrs. T. D. MacOwan, Jack Burgan, John H. Dietz, J. Pat Malone, V. J. McGee, E. L. Hales and Harold Erwin.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

By Troy Martin

Tommy Thompson came down to "Lair country" Wednesday to testify before a grand jury. He cut an unobtrusive though somewhat uneasy figure at the county court house.

Tommy had a lot at stake in the proceedings. In effect the grand jury would decide whether Tommy had laid by the heels of a negligent district attorney or had used the columns of the mighty Globe-Times to persecute a diligent public servant.

***

Tommy and I have had our differences and that's no secret. I believe that he has used his position to persecute several public servants in Randall County, including Judge Wayland Angel.

It is nothing more than to be expected that Tommy would be uneasy in Randall County court house. He has levelled one sort of an attack or another at many office holders housed in the county's capitol building.

***

Although he has been very generous in dishing out verbal whippings in public print to those who have no means to answer, Tommy has been reticient to cross swords with those who have a newspaper, no matter how small, with which to fight back.

***

We still believe that if Representative Tom James and Thompson had steeped themselves in the rules of accomplice testimony the charges brought against Avent Lair in the recent House Investigating Committee report would never have been made.

Lair was criticized for what the committee termed failure to bring criminal prosecution against former County Judge Roy Joe Stevens.

Let us point out that although several law enforcement officers were indicted in Potter County as an aftermath of the crime hearings in Amarillo last year, not a single criminal conviction has been recorded in Potter County or any other county as an aftermath of the hearings. Thompson is said to have "handpicked" the district attorney in Potter County.

Why no convictions in Potter County, Tommy?

***

Although it was shortly before our time, it seems in retrospect that the hearings in Amarillo resulted from a falling out of birds of a feather. It's hard to use the testimony of a pot to convict a kettle in any court of law.

***

Anyway, Tommy smiled and shook hands.

***

Tom James is a likeable young man. Inexperienced, to be sure but he is a friendly fellow. He's 32 years old, out of law school since 1957, in the legislature most of the time since and couldn't have had a chance to pick up much experience in the rough and tumble world of criminal law practice.

I don't think Tom James has the spizerinctum to win the attorney general post next year, in any event. If he studies his profession and watches his political ties, he may go far some day.

Hilltop Views

BY DR. J. A. HILL

"Where are American schools weakest?" asks the U.S. News and World Report of August 28. In a sort of preface to an interview with U.S. Commissioner of Education, Sterling McMurrin, the magazine strongly implies that public education needs quite a bit of surgery; which reminds me of a statement made long ago that "it is easier to criticize than to correct." This could be one of the reasons why so many people are taking cracks at our schools.

Perhaps the first thing that should be said about the interview with Dr. McMurrin is that as Commissioner of Education he has (as of now) comparatively little control over American public education; and we are to be thankful for that. By and large our public schools are run at the state and local level.

The second thing to be noted here is that neither by education or experience is Dr. McMurrin qualified as an expert in public education. The Commissioner himself says in the interview with U.S. News that "I can't qualify to teach anything in high school-- I haven't been through a school of education.

"As far as I am aware there's no state in the union that would certify me.

"Of course I think in some places I might get on the list of the 100,000 or so teachers who are permitted to teach on a temporary basis without full certification."

Without intending to cast reflection upon Dr. McMurrin's ability or his high professional attainuents this column would say that in all probability the gentleman would be a complete flop as a teacher in any public school system. He admits that he has made no formal study of the processes of learning or of the nature and problems of children and youth. He is an apostle of that old academic philosophy so often found on university campuses, that if a teacher knows his subject matter he is a good teacher-- he doesn't need to know his student, and doesn't. That is why some of the poorest teaching anywhere is found in our universities. This writer was once shocked when a distinguished university president said to him, "We don't take much stock in getting acquainted with our students."

This discounting of the formal study of Education has hurt public schools in many ways. When this writer was a student at The University of Texas those of us who took work in the Department of Pedagogy (Education) were called "pee-doggies', and that great educational statesman Dr. W. S. Sutton who was then head of the department had a long hard pull in giving equal esteem with other Department heads. Be it said to his credit that in his fight for status he never once apologized for being an exponent of professional education for teachers, and he finally rose to the office of President of the institution.

Another thing, colleges for teachers were never accorded the respect on the part of the public and legislative bodies that colleges of other kinds enjoyed. They had to fight on every inch of the ground for the crumbs from legislative tables and subsist on low-level salaries and maintenance. In this and most other states they were played down or given the absent treatment by many of the big dailies, and when referred to at all were mentioned in desparaging terminology. When they received editorial mention in the metropolitan press it was often derogatory.

So prevalent has been this "high hat" attitude toward colleges for teachers that by and large sons and daughters of parents who could afford it have gone to other types of institutions of higher learning, even when they expected to teach. Moreover, every kind of Tom, Dick, and Harry (Collegewise) was empowered to issue teacher certificates, though the teachers colleges were roundly scolded every two years or oftener, for giving academic courses and not staying with their knitting. If teachers are not well educated, who is to blame?

So strong and so persistent has been this opposition to colleges for the professional education of teachers that most of these institutions have given up the fight for the ideal that brought them into existence--the concept that one ought to try to learn something about the job he is expected to do--and have changed their names and broadened their function, so that today teachers colleges as such are about as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Dr. McMurrin, U.S. Commissioner of Education, goes down in educational history, along with a lot of others of like philosophy, as one who does not believe in trying to learn by formal study anything about how to do that which he has decided to work at the rest of his life.

Panhandle Leads in 'Symphonic Drama'

The Texas Panhandle is a flourishing, growing region of progressive people. Not only in the economic sense, but also culturally. One of the latest manifestations of the latter is a movement to import "symphonic drama" from the Southeast.

Paul Green, of North Carolina fame, whose nine indoor "shrine" plays have drawn more than three million persons in 19 summers, is writing a script for a play recreating the stiring history of the Panhandle, with music, colorful movement and pageantry. And the Panhandle Heritage Foundation is enthusiastically planning and promoting its production in a permanent outdoor theatre deep in the heart of the area where the pioneers originally enacted the drama. . .in the Palo Duro Canyon. Plans are to stage the show 60 nights in each summer, beginning next year if possible, or in 1963 at the latest.

Meanwhile, foundation leaders are pushing the movement through committees and speakers in nine communities of the area. They seek to raise money to build a simple outdoor theatre and open the show--$127,500 to $150,000--primarily through sale of "founders week" tickets and foundation memberships, and "then, to keep the show "on the road," by regular seat sales averaging $2.50. The cast will consist of paid actors, most of them recruited locally.

"Symphonic dramas telling the stories of history on the ground where it was made, have proved little short of sensational. Green's "Lost Colony," staged on the lonely shores of Roanoke Island, NC, is still a smash hit after 19 seasons. For 13 seasons, summer tourists have flocked to the outdoor theatre at Williamsburg, Va., to see "The Common Glory."

The Panhandle's forthcoming symphonic drama is likely to publicize that region and its past glories and present attractions as nothing else has done in generations. It will set an example which other parts of the state with interesting histories might well emulate. No area has a more thrilling story than Harris County, where Texas freedom was won and the first regular Texas capital was established.

A dramatization of the San Jacinto epic, written by someone of Paul Green's ability, professionally staged and directed in an outdoor theatre on or near the San Jacinto battlegrounds, with the magic of music, lights, action and pageantry that are combined in the "symphonic drama" could draw more people in a week than attend the annual reading of San Jacinto Day speeches in years. And they would be cash customers--many of them tourists attracted by the show.

This is something which the historical and patriotic groups should think about and investigate.

Night School Registration Begins Here Wednesday

Marking the second semester that night classes have been held on the campus here of West Texas State College, registration for evening classes has been set for Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The night classes division of the college was moved to the campus last January, after completion of the Amarillo-Canyon expressway. With the addition of a number of laboratory courses, enrollment showed an increase over the previous spring, 1960, that classes were held at Amarillo Center.

"We were very gratified because of the increase," said Dr. Roy Boger, director of evening classes. "Probably because of the ease of travel over the expressway, more ample classroom space and use of the library and laboratory facilities made the increase possible."

Registration of more than 1,300 students was listed for the spring, 1961, semester, at WT, while 1,095 were registered the previous spring at the Amarillo Center.

Effective with the semester opening Wednesday, an evening or Saturday class will be cancelled at its first class meeting if it does not have the minimum number, ten, registered then, Dr. Boger said.

"This means that students cannot wait until the second or third class meeting to enroll, or they may find the class concelled," he said.

Enrollment will begin at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Building, Dr. Boger said. The bookstore will be open for the convenience of students.

More than 100 courses will be offered at night, with the bulk of them in the School of Business. Four courses in Bible are now available, with the move to the campus here, and they will be taught in the student centers adjacent to the campus.

Two courses in chemistry, one in biology, two in geology, and one in physics are the offerings of the sciences division, made available by the move to Canyon.

Book Club Donates Lockers, Camping Supplies to Scouts

New cabinets in the Girl Scout House have been completed as a gift from the Junior Women's Book Club of Canyon.

Mrs. J. Murphy White, project chairman of the club, and her committee comprised of Mrs. Charles Smallwood, Mrs. Donald Briggs, and Mrs. Doris Moore, decided on the much needed storage area for the Scouts, in addition to an earlier gift of camping equipment.

During the spring months the Book Club purchased for the Scouts: one 7 by 9 foot tent which will sleep four to six girls; 3 heavy metal Dutch ovens and lids to be used for cook outs; 6 battery powered lanterns; large table for feeding outdoors; a complete first-aid kit; 6 ridge poles for tents; and 5 large water cans. In addition to the new cabinets, the Book Club donation to the Scouts will provide for additional remodeling in the Scout building.

Mrs. White stated that the funds for civic enterprises are gained from the home tour and fashion show that the Book Club sponsors annually. Other projects this year included a donation toward furnishing a kitchen and powder room for the new Livestock Association building, and the purchase of a vacuum cleaner and new books for the library.

Mrs. Grace McDougal and her daughter, Leta Gaines, and granddaughter, Celia Gaines, have returned from a vacation trip to Houston and Galveston where they visited with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberts and son, all of Amarillo, were visitors Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G.B.Combs.

Museum Featuring First One-Man Show for Bassett

Throughout the month of September Panhandle-Plains Museum will display an exhibit of paintings by Reveau Bassett of Dallas, according to C. Boone McClure, museum director.

This is the first one-man show for Bassett during his many years of painting.

Though largely self-taught, Bassett had close association with the late Frank Reaugh from early childhood. He studied print making with Joseph Pennell at Arts Students League in New York, drawing with W.R. Leigh, the noted western artist, and painting with George Pierce Innis of the Grand Central Art School in New York.

Bassett has had paintings in many exhibits but due to consistent selling, he has been unable to present a one-man show, according to McClure.

"Many of the paintings on display in the gallery are on loan," McClure pointed out.

Some of Bassett's outstanding works include: a 100 foot mural of wild life in the Southwest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Murchison, 10 five foot paintings of bird and animal life on St. Joseph's Island in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Murchison and paintings in the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, the Dallas Museum of Natural History, the Houston Museum of Natural History and the Panhandle-Plains Museum.

EXHIBIT by Reveau Bassett of Dallas is now on display at the Panhandle-Plains Museum. Bassett is nationally-known for his paintings of ducks.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at 3 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, the Rev. Strauss Atkinson, officiating.

Born at Houston, Mississippi, August 17, 1883, Hill lived on Route 2, Canyon, since 1916. He served as commissioner of precinct 2 from 1936 until 1950. A member of the First Baptist Church and Masonic Lodge, Hill was a farmer-stockman.

He is survived by his wife, Claudia Wilma Ray of Canyon; five sons, Elon and Victor, both of Canyon, Ishmael of Lubbock, Sam of Seminole and Forrest of Amarillo; one brother, John Hill of Woodlawn, Mississippi; two sisters, Clara Harrington of Houston, Mississippi and Rose Harrington of Aberdeen, Mississippi; and 11 grandchildren.

Editor's note: The W. A. Moores are touring outdoor theatres throughout the nation and observing phases to be used in connection with the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. proposed production. Moore is writing a series of articles about the trip for the Canyon News.

It seems to get increasingly difficult to leave each new symphonic drama and theater that we visit. Each group seems to give us a more royal and warm welcome than the preceding one.

We lingered at Mantes to watch a rehersal--yes, rehersals continue all summer, chiefly to give the understudies an opportunity to keep fresh in their roles, but also to keep all the cast, especially the "mob" or crowd scenes vital and full of human interest.

It was almost noon when we said goodbye to Glenn Vernon, the assistant business manager, and Edward Pilkington, a talented cast member whom we hope will come to W.T. to work on his master's in theater.

The drive over to Williamsburg was not so far but that we could make it leisurely through the sand dune area of the Nag's Head costal area. We got a thrill out of passing through the fine new tunnel at Newport News.

It was a first vist to Williamsburg, Virginia, for Mrs. Moore and the boys so we went immediately to the restored area so that they might see what was in store for them the next day.

Of all the many places we have visited, I believe Williamsburg is best planned, equipped and staffed to take care of visitors. We had a most charming "southern lady" help us at the housing desk. We found a private home where we might have the entire second floor (two bedrooms and two baths) at about half the hotel-motel rates.

After a pleasant dinner the feature of which was pecan pie, for which Williamsburg is also famous, we went to the theater which is beautifully located in Lake Matoaka.

It was so easy to find as there are signs all over the town pointing to "The Common Glory" Theater.

Mr. Roger Sherman, the quiet spoken, but most hospitable general manager, met us and after asking about the West Texans in Dr. Harper's party who had visited him not much in advance of us, gave us another of the "red carpet" receptions.

Mr. Sherman and his wife, Suzanne, are another of the talented husband-wife teams we met. He did the scenic and lighting design and she did the beautiful costumes which add so much to the effect iveness of "The Common Glory."

The theatre is really in the edge of the campus of the College of William and Mary and the director is Howard Scammon, head of the drama department there. Mr. Scammon is not only a fine director, he is also a very talented actor. One of the leading characters broke his arm during the day and Mr. Scammon played his role in a very short notice.

Mr. Green has written a great tribute to democracy in his script and one understands after seeing it why Mr. Green considers thses words of Thomas Jefferson ". . .all men are created equal" among the finest ever composed in the western world.

Due to a time element and also for supposed economic reasons, much of the music has been cut out of "The Common Glory." We found this regretable as the music had been such a thrilling part of "The Lost Colony." The dancing was beautiful and most professional but lost much of its effectiveness because it had to be done to recorded sound and the sound equipment seemed to be in its bad behavior the night we saw the show.

The theater is too large we felt (it seats 2,500) but we did like the practice they have of clearing the stage completely at the close of the show and inviting the audience to come up on stage and look at the beautiful view of Lake Matoaka from the stage. This lake was named for Virginia's Little Princess, Pocahontas, and makes a perfect setting for a symphonic drama.

The next day we spent visiting the restored area and got a new sense of history as we sat in the old capitol building and envisioned Patrick Henry and the other patriots making their fiery speeches for freedome from the king's tyranny.

Leaving Williamsburg, we stopped in Richmond to visit Carl Michell, one of our drama sons, now with the Valentine Museum in Richmond. Carl is living in a beautiful restored house in the old area of Richmond which will be restored in time much as Williamsburg has been. Carl lives just around the corner from the historic church, St. John's Episcopal Church, where Patrick Henry uttered the immortal words "Give me liberty or give me death." He took us over to visit the church and we were given a tour and most interesting explanantion of all the facts concerning the speech, etc. by a gracious lady typical of the old South. When I wondered about Patrick Henry's descendents, if any were still living, etc. her eyes twinkled and she said, "He certainly does have many descendents. In fact, you are looking at his great great granddaughter!"

Again we would like to have visited longer with Carl but he assured us he would be back in Texas in October to visit his parents, the Sheridan Michells, so again we packed the purple chariot for the trip to Stratford, Canada and the 9th Shakespearean festival being held there.

MRS. ZULA USERY

One Canyon teacher has just completed an interesting and profitable summer. Mrs. Zula Usery, fourth grade teacher, has just returned from New Jersey, a journey of 2,015 miles, where she has spent the last three summers working in Trail Blazer Girls Camp.

This camp extends over a 1,000 acre tract of heavy forest, lake, and mountain region in the northwest corner of the state. "This is an ideal spot for a camp site," says Mrs. Usery. The six small camps for boys and the ten small camps for girls are located near, and on opposite sides of the beautiful Lake Mashipacong, which affords fishing, boating, swimming, and canoeing for both counselors and campers. It was on this lake that Mrs. Usery got her first lessons in literally paddling her own canoe.

Before the camp opened for the two-weeks counselor training period, "old staff" was asked to report for duty early to make ready for "new staff" members. This meant that Mrs. Usery arrived at camp June 15 instead of June 21 when the training program actually began. Mrs. Usery feels that through pre-camp-conference she has gained some of the most beneficial educational experiences which she has ever known. It was through this training that she gained an understanding of the camp, its physical setup, equipment needed, and necessary camp routine. Through the conference the personnel, made up of peoples from many nations: France, Germany, India, Jamaica, Switzerland, Korea, and America both black and white learn to work cooperatively, each lending his or her skills, abilities, and talents to a common cause, that of preparing themselves for life in a community with oneness of direction, a harmonious atmosphere without tension, and a true spirit of concern for one's neighbor. Working with these peoples of different colutral background gave one his first insight into the true meaning of these lines from one of the favorite camp songs:

No man stands alone.
Each man's joy is joy to me,
Each man's grief is my own.
We need one another;
So I will defend
Each man as my brother;
Each man as my friend.

Mrs. Usery's job at camp was a many faceted one. She served as relief counselor on occasions, did some of the camp buying, drove the station wagon to take campers, or any camp personnel to the doctor or to the hospital, or on any other call of emergency or necessity. She was in charge of all linens and general supplies for the ten small camps which make up Trail Blazer Girls Camp. When show night for counselors rolled around* Mrs. Usery would load twelve or thirteen young women counselors into the station wagon and take off for Port Jervis, New York, or Milford, Pennsylvania. On cooks' and and kitchen boys' days off she had the pleasant duty of driving them into town and picking them up again.

Quoting Mrs. Usery, "Camping affords plenty of hard work for all, many problems, much fun, some of which is hilarious. One example was the night the raccoon awakened me sniffing around my round-to shelter. When I shined my flashlight on him and tried to scat him out, he grabbed my slacks and made off across the woods in a dead run. The attraction was a small piece of fudge in one of the pockets. He had no notion of giving up the candy, and I was in no mood to give up my slacks. We had a hot race. I won, even if I were in bare feet and pajama tail!"

The day the campers arrive, excitement runs high throughout the entire camp. This is just as true for the August camp as for the July camp. Everything has been made ready for our ninety guests; girls ranging in age from eight to sixteen, of every color, race and creed. A red letter day reigns in kitchen and dining hall. These youngsters, especially those who have come to camp for the first time, begin an entirely new life. For some of them it is their first time to sit down to a table for a meal. Some have never set foot on soil before. To some the dark deep silence of the forest, the unfamiliar night sounds, the absence of bright lights and walls of buildings become frightening to them at first. The trained counselors help them to overcome these fears by showing love, giving them a feeling of security; keeping them busy doing new things for their own comfort and that of the camp group.

These children are taught many things, among which are to cook; set and wait tables properly; gather wood; build fires; plan meals that are well balanced; swim, hike, do crafts in clay, wood, leather, and cord. They do creative writing; drawing, nature study in nature at its best where they are numerous varities of trees, flowers, and wildlife so gentle that it has no fear of people. These campers learn to saddle and ride donkeys; also harness and drive donkeys. Another phase of their training for living is the religious side which is by no means neglected. Each Sunday morning, rain or shine, every child goes to the church of his choice by he Prostestant, Catholic or Jew.

It is the hope and the aim of the camp that during this training period of working and playing together, the experience and knowhow gained here shall be carried back into the homes where a better understanding, and a higher standard of living may be attained.

These children are sent by different welfare agencies of New York City, one of which is The Church of All Nations. This camp is wholly dependent upon donations for support.

Mrs. Usery feels that the high moral standards of this camp were instigated and are upheld by another Canyon woman, Lois Goodrich, a W.T. graduate and a former teacher in Canyon Public Schools, who for several years has been executive director of Trail Blazer Camps. Miss Goodrich is nationally, and internationally, known as one of the leading camp authorities of today. Her book on decentralized camping was published in 1959.

Many other Canyon women have added their contributions and services to this camp, formerly known as Life Camp. To name a few: Ethel Ruth Collins Spring, daughter of Mrs. T.W. Collins, Nancy Strain Petruccione, Sarah Thompson, Marylin Carruth, W.T. students Linda West and Margaret Roundtree. Also Mrs. L.M. Cousins who spent two summers as dietitian for Boys Camp, and who introduced Mrs. Usery to Trail Blazer Camps.

(Editor's Note: "Summer at Camp", a story of Trail Blazer Camps, was published in Look Magazine, Sept. 12.)

KEEPING UP WITH THE ARTS

Mary Caballero

There seems to be many secrets flying about these days. I'm just as anxious as can be to find out about these things that are kept under cover! In Laura V. Hamner's column on Sunday, she writes about an "Amarillo man who will have a book published this fall." The writer and the name of the book cannot be told as this time! Wonder why all the suspense?

Then last week, I heard a very interesting rumor and told that it might still be a secret. This secret concerns a well-known Amarillo writer who has a book chosen by the movie industry for a film. Well, secrets are fun and maybe in the next few weeks "all" will be exposed.

In West Berlin ballet fans have lost their hearts to Jerome Robbins and his Ballets: usa. "When the American troupe opened on August 25, each day of the six day stand was met with wild applause.

During their present stay, the dancers are presenting two programs one with "Interplay," "Events," "Afternoon of a Faun" and "The Concert" and the other "The Moves," "The Cage" and "N.Y. Export OP. Jazz."

A West Berlin paper BZ described the troupe as a "community in which each dancer is a solist."

America seem to know that international understanding has always come through the arts.

Edith Honholt who writes Tele-Scope says that "women will be conspicuous by their absence next season on the regular TV series, but they will still merit special attention. Ingrid Thulin, one of the most noted actresses in the stock company in Ingnar Bergman, the noted Swedish director, will star in a live adaption of "Intermezzo" on Theater 62 in November (NBC). Jean Pierre Aumont will co-star. Judy Garland, missing from television for six years, will star on her own television special in the Spring (CBS). Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin will be her guests.

Even the documentaries have discovered women. NBC will present a program on "The Story of a Debutante" and Project 20 will focus on American women through the years in specials scheduled for next season.

M. Sgt. and Mrs. Earl F. Hadley and daughters, Pamela, Evelyn and Meredith have returned from a vacation trip to Oklahoma City, and Lawton, Oklahoma, and to Independence, Kansas, where they visited with relatives and friends.

Grand Jury Report Pending

A. W. Lair

The Avent Lair controversy still hung in the balance--or better put, in the lap of the Randall County grand jury---late last night.

The grand jury was expected to submit a written report some time Thursday morning after more than a day of probing the case.

The grand jury did return two indictments Wednesday.

John Wesley Hanson was indicted on a charge of murder with malice in connection with the Sept. 29, 1958 death of Sam Lantrip.

Randall County District Attorney Avent Lair said Hanson has signed a statement in which he admitted killing Lantrip "because he squealed."

Lantrip is alleged to have been slain in Potter County 1 1/2 miles north of Bushland. The body was found in the trunk of a car about 2 miles southwest of Palo Duro turkey farm.

No indictment was ever returned against Hanson in Potter County. Lair said the accused man is up for consideration for parole from New Mexico state penitentiary in July of next year.

Hanson is now serving a sentence of one to 25 years in the New Mexican prison for assault with intent to murder, Lair reported.

Also indicted was Betty Ann Owens who was charged with passing a forged instrument. She was charged in connection with the passing of a check for $35.00 June 7 at an Amarillo grocery store.

The check was signed "Barbara Ann Taylor." The Owens woman is in custody in Hot Springs, Ark.

Grand jurors heard from eight witnesses in the Lair controversy. Lair asked the grand jury to consider his record after a recent report by the House Investigating Committee scored him for what it termed failure to bring criminal action against former Randall County Judge Roy Joe Stevens.

Representative Tom James of Dallas has shouldered responsibility for the report. He strongly contends that Lair should have prosecuted Stevens. Lair just as stoutly maintains that he took the Stevens case before Randall County grand juries twice since the house investigating committee conducted a crime probe in Amarillo last year.

Stevens resigned and subsequently was disbarred as an aftermath of the hearings.

James was vice-chairman of the investigating committee in Amarillo. He was at the top of the list of those subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury Wednesday.

Lair said he would resign if the grand jury finds any taint of negligence on his part in the Roy Joe Stevens case.

Appearing before the grand jury in the Wednesday sessions were Guy Hardin, Shamrock, member of the State Bar Grievance Committee which investigated Stevens; Clark Jarnagin, Gordon Fielden and Homer Kinsey, grand jury foremen; Representative James; Doc Blanchard, chairman of the crime probe committee in Amarillo; Sheriff L.S. "Slim" Johnston and S.B. Whittenburg and Tommy Thompson, Amarillo newspaper executives.

As one of the reporters who converged on the court house here Wednesday put it, "There's just not much for us to write until the grand jury reports."

The Canyon News held its pages open Wednesday night until there was no hope for a report for the regular paper. Preparations were being made at a late hour last night to print an extra as soon as a report is forthcoming.

School Space Not Critical

Football Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the Canyon-Hereford football game are on sale at the high school and will be sold at Canyon Drug, according to Joe Gibson, school superintendent.

Game will be played at Hereford and kick off time is 8 p.m.

LULA BELLE, range cow belonging to Hatcher Brown, surprised the boss last week when she gave birth to twins. Brown said she was a little flustered at first but now is caring for them like any loving mother.

Jr. High Not Full

Canyon School System is not in as dire need of class room space as was believed a week ago.

This theory was advanced Tuesday night by Bob Wear. Wear is a school board member and co-chairman along with Jack Haley of a citizen's study group chosen to assess the school's needs.

Haley is president of the school board.

Bill Sternenberg another member of the board, accompanied Wear on a survey of school facilities early this week.

Two sections of the fourth grade have been moved to the old junior high school building leaving one class room still available there. There are at least four additional class rooms available in the old high school building. Wear reported. This building is now being occupied by the seventh and eighth grades.

Wear has suggested that two elementary schools be established with grades one through five in the present elementary school building and corresponding grades in the old junior high school building.

This would leave the old high school building available for sixth, seventh and eighth grades. He contends that there is plenty of room in the building for these three grades.

"This would solve our class room problems for at least two years," Wear said.

The old junior high school building has undergone extensive repairs recently.

Rubber tile was laid over wooden floor. The building has a gymnasium with a refinished floor.

"That makes it a useable gymnasium," Wear pointed out.

The building is equipped for 15 sections now, Wear said. It is being used by 14 sections counting the two fourth grade classes recently moved in.

Rest rooms have been tiled and remodeled. Wear said the dining area could do with some remodeling by which its capacity could be increased by six tables.

In the meantime a citizens committee is studying schools needs in three fields. These are school census and enrollment, finance and physical facilities.

A.W. Lair is chairman of the school census and enrollment committee. Members are Kenneth Erwin, Riley Troth, Troy Martin, Dr. J.B. Roberts, Mrs. R.A. Neblett and Otis Parker.

Hosea Foster is chairman of the finance committee. Members are Don Standley, Newton Crain, Wesley Cox, C.M. Purcell, Joe Frank, Dr. C.R. Nester and Walter Graham.

Dr. W.J. Wooten is chairman of the physical facilities committee. Members are Bob Bellah, Strauss Atkinson, Virgil Henson, Delbert Lowes, Marion Higdon, Mrs. Clay Cooper and Bill Sternenberg.

The group is scheduled to report to the school board Oct. 17.

2,600 Expected for WT's Fall Semester

More than 2,600 students are expected to begin arriving on the campus of West Texas State College Sunday to mark the opening of the fall semester.

Dormitories will be opened for students Sunday, and most of the early arrivals will be freshmen who will begin an orientation and testing program at 8 a.m. Monday. The beginning students will have periods of counseling before registering for classes, starting at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

While a boost in full time day students is expected, another 1,200 part time students in WT's evening classes will be enrolling Wednesday, starting at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Building. Registration for day students will continue Wednesday and Thursday with a faculty-student assembly marking the close of registration at 11 a.m. Thursday. Regular classes being Thursday at 1 p.m.

Among the early students who will be on campus to prepare for the fall semester will be members of the Buffalo Band, who are expected today. The bandsmen will be practicing early for their fall shows to be presented at West Texas State's football games.

Dr. Ted J. Crager, director of the band, said that letters announcing the early practice sessions had gone to all members. He has requested that any other students who wish to be members of the organization also make plans to be in Canyon Thursday.

WT faculty members will meet Saturday at 8 a.m., for an annual breakfast and business meeting. The breakfast will be in the cafeteria.

County Budget Hearing Slated for October 2

Public hearing on Randall County's proposed budget of $748,663.00 has been set for the first Monday in October.

County Auditor E.T. Cummings appeared before Randall County commissioners court here Tuesday.

The auditor reviewed parts of the budget. He said estimated expenditures for the current year are pegged at $726,262.00 while expenditures for 1960 were $711,224.00.

Revenue for 1960 came to $737,350.00. Revenue for the current year is estimated at $759,105.00 while next year's income is projected at $755,113.00.

Cummings said the expected drop in income is due to the fact that Buffalo Lake will not yield the $4,400.00 next year that it yielded this year because this revenue is paid in once every two years. Interest on investments also will be down next year, the auditor said.

The county receives a percentage of revenue from the lake in compensation for the land it occupies having been taken off the tax roll.

Cummings said a 10 percent increase in county pay roll is expected next year. He said this is due in part to an increase in salaries for people already on the county pay roll and in part by an increase in personnel.

County Judge Wayland Angel announced that the court would attend a voting machine demonstration at noon Thursday in Amarillo.

The court deferred payment of Gene McGlasson who acted as county judge while Judge Angel was on vacation recently.

Bill York, city manager, and Firechief Bill Sternenberg appeared before the court to inquire as to what is to be done about putting a war surplus fire truck acquired by the county into running condition.

The truck in question is a Ward-LaFrance pumper and was purchased by the county for $280.00 from war surplus.

It is equipped with a three-stage aluminum ladder and is a 1951 model. It has a Continental motor.

The commission asked if the city would be willing to take title to the truck. York said he believes it would.

"If we repair the truck will our agreement with the city on fire calls be revised?" asked commissioner C.Y. Johnson.

"I certainly think it should be studied," the city manager replied.

The city and county now have an agreement whereby the county pays the city $100.00 for every fire call answered outside the city limits by the city fire department.

No action was taken in connection with repairing of the truck. York is slated to appear before the court next week with estimates on what it would cost to repair the truck.

Commissioners learned that Pioneer Natural Gas Company is planning to construct about 15 miles of 20-inch pipe line in Precinct 1 beginning in October.

Randall County commissioners will attend a meeting of Panhandle county judges and commissioners in Amarillo Sept. 18.

One Injured In Wreck At Happy Intersection

One man is in critical condition at Neblett Hospital following a car-gravel truck collision at Happy Wednesday.

Injured is Lon Phillips of Stratford, Oklahoma. He was treated for cuts about the head and chest. Attending physicians said he would be classified as in critical condition.

Phillips was making a left turn off highway 87 onto Happy's main street when his automobile was struck broadside by the truck heading south.

Impact carried the car approximately 125 feet beyond the intersection. Accident occurred at approximately 2 p.m.

Driver of the truck was Billy Morris Tucker of Amarillo. He was driving for Charles Walker. He was not injured, according to investigating highway patrolmen.

The late-model car was estimated at a total loss and the truck was only damaged slightly.

Graveside rites for Andrew Fangman, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Fangman of Hereford, were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Hereford's Rest Lawn Cemetery, Father Nathanial Madden of St. Anthony's Catholic Church there officiating.

The infant died late Tuesday in Neblett Hospital.

Five sisters and three brothers survive.

LaGrone Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Trowbridge died Monday in an Amarillo hospital.

She was born November 5, 1868 and was a member of the First Baptist Church of Canyon. She had been making her home in Amarillo for the past several years with a daughter, Mrs. George Tombs. She was also a member of the Pioneer Club and the Rebekah Lodge.

FROM THE CANYON RIM

By Troy Martin

Tommy Thompson came down to "Lair country" Wednesday to testify before a grand jury. He cut an unobtrusive though somewhat uneasy figure at the county court house.

Tommy had a lot at stake in the proceedings. In effect the grand jury would decide whether Tommy had laid by the heels of a negligent district attorney or had used the columns of the mighty Globe-Times to persecute a diligent public servant.

***

Tommy and I have had our differences and that's no secret. I believe that he has used his position to persecute several public servants in Randall County, including Judge Wayland Angel.

It is nothing more than to be expected that Tommy would be uneasy in Randall County court house. He has levelled one sort of an attack or another at many office holders housed in the county's capitol building.

***

Although he has been very generous in dishing out verbal whippings in public print to those who have no means to answer, Tommy has been reticient to cross swords with those who have a newspaper, no matter how small, with which to fight back.

***

We still believe that if Representative Tom James and Thompson had steeped themselves in the rules of accomplice testimony the charges brought against Avent Lair in the recent House Investigating Committee report would never have been made.

Lair was criticized for what the committee termed failure to bring criminal prosecution against former County Judge Roy Joe Stevens.

Let us point out that although several law enforcement officers were indicted in Potter County as an aftermath of the crime hearings in Amarillo last year, not a single criminal conviction has been recorded in Potter County or any other county as an aftermath of the hearings. Thompson is said to have "handpicked" the district attorney in Potter County.

Why no convictions in Potter County, Tommy?

***

Although it was shortly before our time, it seems in retrospect that the hearings in Amarillo resulted from a falling out of birds of a feather. It's hard to use the testimony of a pot to convict a kettle in any court of law.

***

Anyway, Tommy smiled and shook hands.

***

Tom James is a likeable young man. Inexperienced, to be sure but he is a friendly fellow. He's 32 years old, out of law school since 1957, in the legislature most of the time since and couldn't have had a chance to pick up much experience in the rough and tumble world of criminal law practice.

I don't think Tom James has the spizerinctum to win the attorney general post next year, in any event. If he studies his profession and watches his political ties, he may go far some day.

Hilltop Views

BY DR. J. A. HILL

"Where are American schools weakest?" asks the U.S. News and World Report of August 28. In a sort of preface to an interview with U.S. Commissioner of Education, Sterling McMurrin, the magazine strongly implies that public education needs quite a bit of surgery; which reminds me of a statement made long ago that "it is easier to criticize than to correct." This could be one of the reasons why so many people are taking cracks at our schools.

Perhaps the first thing that should be said about the interview with Dr. McMurrin is that as Commissioner of Education he has (as of now) comparatively little control over American public education; and we are to be thankful for that. By and large our public schools are run at the state and local level.

The second thing to be noted here is that neither by education or experience is Dr. McMurrin qualified as an expert in public education. The Commissioner himself says in the interview with U.S. News that "I can't qualify to teach anything in high school--I haven't been through a school of education.

"As far as I am aware there's no state in the union that would certify me.

"Of course I think in some places I might get on the list of the 100,000 or so teachers who are permitted to teach on a temporary basis without full certification."

Without intending to cast reflection upon Dr. McMurrin's ability or his high professional attainuents this column would say that in all probability the gentleman would be a complete flop as a teacher in any public school system. He admits that he has made no formal study of the processes of learning or of the nature and problems of children and youth. He is an apostle of that old academic philosophy so often found on university campuses, that if a teacher knows his subject matter he is a good teacher--he doesn't need to know his student, and doesn't. That is why some of the poorest teaching anywhere is found in our universities. This writer was once shocked when a distinguished university president said to him, "We don't take much stock in getting acquainted with our students."

This discounting of the formal study of Education has hurt public schools in many ways. When this writer was a student at The University of Texas those of us who took work in the Department of Pedagogy (Education) were called "pee-doggies', and that great educational statesman Dr. W. S. Sutton who was then head of the department had a long hard pull in giving equal esteem with other Department heads. Be it said to his credit that in his fight for status he never once apologized for being an exponent of professional education for teachers, and he finally rose to the office of President of the institution.

Another thing, colleges for teachers were never accorded the respect on the part of the public and legislative bodies that colleges of other kinds enjoyed. They had to fight on every inch of the ground for the crumbs from legislative tables and subsist on low-level salaries and maintenance. In this and most other states they were played down or given the absent treatment by many of the big dailies, and when referred to at all were mentioned in desparaging terminology. When they received editorial mention in the metropolitan press it was often derogatory.

So prevalent has been this "high hat" attitude toward colleges for teachers that by and large sons and daughters of parents who could afford it have gone to other types of institutions of higher learning, even when they expected to teach. Moreover, every kind of Tom, Dick, and Harry (Collegewise) was empowered to issue teacher certificates, though the teachers colleges were roundly scolded every two years or oftener, for giving academic courses and not staying with their knitting. If teachers are not well educated, who is to blame?

So strong and so persistent has been this opposition to colleges for the professional education of teachers that most of these institutions have given up the fight for the ideal that brought them into existence--the concept that one ought to try to learn something about the job he is expected to do--and have changed their names and broadened their function, so that today teachers colleges as such are about as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Dr. McMurrin, U.S. Commissioner of Education, goes down in educational history, along with a lot of others of like philosophy, as one who does not believe in trying to learn by formal study anything about how to do that which he has decided to work at the rest of his life.

Panhandle Leads in 'Symphonic Drama'

The Texas Panhandle is a flourishing, growing region of progressive people. Not only in the economic sense, but also culturally. One of the latest manifestations of the latter is a movement to import "symphonic drama" from the Southeast.

Paul Green, of North Carolina fame, whose nine indoor "shrine" plays have drawn more than three million persons in 19 summers, is writing a script for a play recreating the stiring history of the Panhandle, with music, colorful movement and pageantry. And the Panhandle Heritage Foundation is enthusiastically planning and promoting its production in a permanent outdoor theatre deep in the heart of the area where the pioneers originally enacted the drama. . .in the Palo Duro Canyon. Plans are to stage the show 60 nights in each summer, beginning next year if possible, or in 1963 at the latest.

Meanwhile, foundation leaders are pushing the movement through committees and speakers in nine communities of the area. They seek to raise money to build a simple outdoor theatre and open the show--$127,500 to $150,000--primarily through sale of "founders week" tickets and foundation memberships, and "then, to keep the show "on the road," by regular seat sales averaging $2.50. The cast will consist of paid actors, most of them recruited locally.

"Symphonic dramas telling the stories of history on the ground where it was made, have proved little short of sensational. Green's "Lost Colony," staged on the lonely shores of Roanoke Island, NC, is still a smash hit after 19 seasons. For 13 seasons, summer tourists have flocked to the outdoor theatre at Williamsburg, Va., to see "The Common Glory."

The Panhandle's forthcoming symphonic drama is likely to publicize that region and its past glories and present attractions as nothing else has done in generations. It will set an example which other parts of the state with interesting histories might well emulate. No area has a more thrilling story than Harris County, where Texas freedom was won and the first regular Texas capital was established.

A dramatization of the San Jacinto epic, written by someone of Paul Green's ability, professionally staged and directed in an outdoor theatre on or near the San Jacinto battlegrounds, with the magic of music, lights, action and pageantry that are combined in the "symphonic drama" could draw more people in a week than attend the annual reading of San Jacinto Day speeches in years. And they would be cash customers--many of them tourists attracted by the show.

This is something which the historical and patriotic groups should think about and investigate.

Night School Registration Begins Here Wednesday

Marking the second semester that night classes have been held on the campus here of West Texas State College, registration for evening classes has been set for Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The night classes division of the college was moved to the campus last January, after completion of the Amarillo-Canyon expressway. With the addition of a number of laboratory courses, enrollment showed an increase over the previous spring, 1960, that classes were held at Amarillo Center.

"We were very gratified because of the increase," said Dr. Roy Boger, director of evening classes. "Probably because of the ease of travel over the expressway, more ample classroom space and use of the library and laboratory facilities made the increase possible."

Registration of more than 1,300 students was listed for the spring, 1961, semester, at WT, while 1,095 were registered the previous spring at the Amarillo Center.

Effective with the semester opening Wednesday, an evening or Saturday class will be cancelled at its first class meeting if it does not have the minimum number, ten, registered then, Dr. Boger said.

"This means that students cannot wait until the second or third class meeting to enroll, or they may find the class concelled," he said.

Enrollment will begin at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Building, Dr. Boger said. The bookstore will be open for the convenience of students.

More than 100 courses will be offered at night, with the bulk of them in the School of Business. Four courses in Bible are now available, with the move to the campus here, and they will be taught in the student centers adjacent to the campus.

Two courses in chemistry, one in biology, two in geology, and one in physics are the offerings of the sciences division, made available by the move to Canyon.

Book Club Donates Lockers, Camping Supplies to Scouts

New cabinets in the Girl Scout House have been completed as a gift from the Junior Women's Book Club of Canyon.

Mrs. J. Murphy White, project chairman of the club, and her committee comprised of Mrs. Charles Smallwood, Mrs. Donald Briggs, and Mrs. Doris Moore, decided on the much needed storage area for the Scouts, in addition to an earlier gift of camping equipment.

During the spring months the Book Club purchased for the Scouts: one 7 by 9 foot tent which will sleep four to six girls; 3 heavy metal Dutch ovens and lids to be used for cook outs; 6 battery powered lanterns; large table for feeding outdoors; a complete first-aid kit; 6 ridge poles for tents; and 5 large water cans. In addition to the new cabinets, the Book Club donation to the Scouts will provide for additional remodeling in the Scout building.

Mrs. White stated that the funds for civic enterprises are gained from the home tour and fashion show that the Book Club sponsors annually. Other projects this year included a donation toward furnishing a kitchen and powder room for the new Livestock Association building, and the purchase of a vacuum cleaner and new books for the library.

Mrs. Grace McDougal and her daughter, Leta Gaines, and granddaughter, Celia Gaines, have returned from a vacation trip to Houston and Galveston where they visited with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. J. Roberts and son, all of Amarillo, were visitors Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G.B.Combs.

Museum Featuring First One-Man Show for Bassett

Throughout the month of September Panhandle-Plains Museum will display an exhibit of paintings by Reveau Bassett of Dallas, according to C. Boone McClure, museum director.

This is the first one-man show for Bassett during his many years of painting.

Though largely self-taught, Bassett had close association with the late Frank Reaugh from early childhood. He studied print making with Joseph Pennell at Arts Students League in New York, drawing with W.R. Leigh, the noted western artist, and painting with George Pierce Innis of the Grand Central Art School in New York.

Bassett has had paintings in many exhibits but due to consistent selling, he has been unable to present a one-man show, according to McClure.

"Many of the paintings on display in the gallery are on loan," McClure pointed out.

Some of Bassett's outstanding works include: a 100 foot mural of wild life in the Southwest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Murchison, 10 five foot paintings of bird and animal life on St. Joseph's Island in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.W. Murchison and paintings in the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, the Dallas Museum of Natural History, the Houston Museum of Natural History and the Panhandle-Plains Museum.

EXHIBIT by Reveau Bassett of Dallas is now on display at the Panhandle-Plains Museum. Bassett is nationally-known for his paintings of ducks.

Moores at Williamsburg, Va.

Editor's note: The W. A. Moores are touring outdoor theatres throughout the nation and observing phases to be used in connection with the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, Inc. proposed production. Moore is writing a series of articles about the trip for the Canyon News.

It seems to get increasingly difficult to leave each new symphonic drama and theater that we visit. Each group seems to give us a more royal and warm welcome than the preceding one.

We lingered at Mantes to watch a rehersal--yes, rehersals continue all summer, chiefly to give the understudies an opportunity to keep fresh in their roles, but also to keep all the cast, especially the "mob" or crowd scenes vital and full of human interest.

It was almost noon when we said goodbye to Glenn Vernon, the assistant business manager, and Edward Pilkington, a talented cast member whom we hope will come to W.T. to work on his master's in theater.

The drive over to Williamsburg was not so far but that we could make it leisurely through the sand dune area of the Nag's Head costal area. We got a thrill out of passing through the fine new tunnel at Newport News.

It was a first vist to Williamsburg, Virginia, for Mrs. Moore and the boys so we went immediately to the restored area so that they might see what was in store for them the next day.

Of all the many places we have visited, I believe Williamsburg is best planned, equipped and staffed to take care of visitors. We had a most charming "southern lady" help us at the housing desk. We found a private home where we might have the entire second floor (two bedrooms and two baths) at about half the hotel-motel rates.

After a pleasant dinner the feature of which was pecan pie, for which Williamsburg is also famous, we went to the theater which is beautifully located in Lake Matoaka.

It was so easy to find as there are signs all over the town pointing to "The Common Glory" Theater.

Mr. Roger Sherman, the quiet spoken, but most hospitable general manager, met us and after asking about the West Texans in Dr. Harper's party who had visited him not much in advance of us, gave us another of the "red carpet" receptions.

Mr. Sherman and his wife, Suzanne, are another of the talented husband-wife teams we met. He did the scenic and lighting design and she did the beautiful costumes which add so much to the effect iveness of "The Common Glory."

The theatre is really in the edge of the campus of the College of William and Mary and the director is Howard Scammon, head of the drama department there. Mr. Scammon is not only a fine director, he is also a very talented actor. One of the leading characters broke his arm during the day and Mr. Scammon played his role in a very short notice.

Mr. Green has written a great tribute to democracy in his script and one understands after seeing it why Mr. Green considers thses words of Thomas Jefferson ". . .all men are created equal" among the finest ever composed in the western world.

Due to a time element and also for supposed economic reasons, much of the music has been cut out of "The Common Glory." We found this regretable as the music had been such a thrilling part of "The Lost Colony." The dancing was beautiful and most professional but lost much of its effectiveness because it had to be done to recorded sound and the sound equipment seemed to be in its bad behavior the night we saw the show.

The theater is too large we felt (it seats 2,500) but we did like the practice they have of clearing the stage completely at the close of the show and inviting the audience to come up on stage and look at the beautiful view of Lake Matoaka from the stage. This lake was named for Virginia's Little Princess, Pocahontas, and makes a perfect setting for a symphonic drama.

The next day we spent visiting the restored area and got a new sense of history as we sat in the old capitol building and envisioned Patrick Henry and the other patriots making their fiery speeches for freedome from the king's tyranny.

Leaving Williamsburg, we stopped in Richmond to visit Carl Michell, one of our drama sons, now with the Valentine Museum in Richmond. Carl is living in a beautiful restored house in the old area of Richmond which will be restored in time much as Williamsburg has been. Carl lives just around the corner from the historic church, St. John's Episcopal Church, where Patrick Henry uttered the immortal words "Give me liberty or give me death." He took us over to visit the church and we were given a tour and most interesting explanantion of all the facts concerning the speech, etc. by a gracious lady typical of the old South. When I wondered about Patrick Henry's descendents, if any were still living, etc. her eyes twinkled and she said, "He certainly does have many descendents. In fact, you are looking at his great great granddaughter!"

Again we would like to have visited longer with Carl but he assured us he would be back in Texas in October to visit his parents, the Sheridan Michells, so again we packed the purple chariot for the trip to Stratford, Canada and the 9th Shakespearean festival being held there.

Fairview Breezes

BY MRS. J. W. WESLEY

Everyone has been busy sowing wheat or preparing ground for planting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Patterson and family attended the rodeo at Boys Ranch Sunday.

Brother Buyers delivered an excellent sermon for us Sunday morning.

C.P. and Frank Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Wesley visited Friday, August 24, with Mr. and Mrs. Pat Allen and children, Mr. and Mrs. S.F. Sharpes came over to the Allens and all had a good time visiting.

Pat Allen had been quite sick and was in the hospital at Kerrville recently. Mrs. Bryan Smith and Gene Sharpes and Mr. and Mrs. Troye Sharpes of Lake Jackson came and took the Allen children, Betty Neal and Billy Wayne, home with them while their mother stayed with their father at the hospital. He still isn't doing very well and is trying to sell their fruit farm.

Friday night the Wesley and Rogers brothers went to Lake Brownwood and enjoyed a fine get-together with the Miller delegation.

Mrs. June Foster and children, Jack Paulann, Connie and Terry and a friend, Mr. Blackwell, flew down to Brownwood Sunday morning for the Miller reunion and returned Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Stoneberg and children of Cordell, Oklahoma, have been vacationing in Chicago with his sisters and his father. They returned to the airbase last week. He is in the air force.

Art Foster who had the misfortune of getting a leg broken some time back stayed with his father while the rest of the family attended the Miller reunion.

Bowis and C.R. Wesley and Bobby Boyd attended the calf roping at Clovis Sunday.

J.W. Wesley finds it isn't fun to get your feet tangled in irrigation tubes as he had a nasty fall and has been suffering with a sore shoulder and a cut above the eye.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Shipman are leaving Fort Ord, California, Tuesday evening to come home. Jerry plans on entering WT when college starts later this month.

We are sorry to have to report the death of John McGehee. He would have been 93 years old in October and had lived here practically all his life. He married Susie Wesley, daughter of Uncle Jim Wesley, some 65 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Prossor and children and his brother of Amarillo visited Sunday with the G.E. Wesleys.

Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Wesley and Susie of Brownfield recently returned from Tresritos, New Mexico, where they went to close their cabin for the winter as winter comes early in the mountains.

Arlen Wesley attended a business meeting in Kansas City the past week.

Mrs. Othell Whitson has been quite ill and spent a week in Roswell with her sister-in-law.

J.W. Wesley and C.P. Rogers were in Tulia Friday on business.

Darrell Wilson has quit his job with G.E. Wesley and is working for the Gulf station in Happy.

Hope Wilson was quite ill several days the past week.

School began Tuesday of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Evans went to Adrian Tuesday to do some plowing.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO Women

Vows Are Exchanged by Couple In Double Ring Rites

MRS. GEORGE E. SCHWAB

Miss Carol Thomas of this city became the bride of George E. Schwab of Galveston in a wedding ceremony performed in the Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary Chapel Saturday evening. Dr. John William Lancaster, pastor of the First Southern Presbyterian Church in Austin, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Seven - tiered candelabra banked with fern flanked the altar and a tall arrangement of white gladioli stood behind the altar. Mrs. J.D. Barker of Canyon, organist, and aunt of the bride, presented a nuptial prelude and wedding marches. Charles Smith of Austin was vocal soloist.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Mary S. Thomas of Canyon and Lynson E. Thomas of Amarillo. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Schwab of Galveston.

Miss Roberta Drake of Perryton was maid of honor, and Miss Dee Anne Singleton of Canyon, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Dr. Schwab was his son's best man and ushers were Robert Schwab of Houston, Carl Burnette of Corpus Christi, Ralph Kneupper of Kendalia, Ed Schwab and Dr. William L. Marr, III, both of Galveston, Steve Thomas, brother of the bride, was candlelighter.

The bride's uncle, William S. Strain of El Paso, gave her in marriage. She wore a classic gown of handclipped Chantilly lace and chiffon taffeta. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a handmade lace cornet edged with seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli petals and white gardenias.

A reception was held in the Colonial Room of the Driskill Hotel following the ceremony. Marcia Nan Barker, cousin of the bride, was seated at the bride's book, and Wilda Lee Strain, also a cousin, presided at the punch bowl. Ruth Abernathy served the cake, assisted by Nancy Lee Petruccione, a cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Schwab attended the University of Texas in Austin and Mr. Schwab, who attended the University, will be a senior student at Texas A&M College this term. Following a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico and northern Colorado, the couple will be at home in College Station.

Dr. and Mrs. Schwab were hosts for a rehersal dinner at the Driskill Hotel, Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

Demonstration Agent Outlines New Features in Fall Fashions

Fall fashions are showing a variety of new features says Mrs. Mona K. Hildreth, Randall County Home Demonstration Agent. The look of the dropped waistline is one of the new fashion itesm. Generally the waistline is hinted at rather than definitely marked with low placement of belts and pockets.

When it comes to skirts, the flare is new. In many designs the flare starts at the pockets on the elongated waistline and spreads gradually to the hem, she said.

New textures and bright, youthful colors will be available in all dresses, suits and coats. Natural and white will be good, too, especially in coats.

Fabric textures will be richer-looking than ever before because of such innovations as wool stripes, plaids of unusual colors, tapestry and jacquard designs.

The manufacturers have bonded foam insulating material to the back of many fabrics, providing feather-light warmth. The laminated fabric is being used in car-coats, jackets and full length coats for dress wear.

Double knit fabric is similar to jersey, but twice as thick and firm. It is perfect for suits and dresses because it is wrinkle resistant and soft. The skirt should be line so that it will hang prettier.

Lovely fall fabrics are now available for school, sport and dress garments. With so many blends of synthetics and natural fibers to choose from, the label becomes more important than ever. Women are advised to look for a good descriptive label when they buy, Mrs. Hildreth concludes.

Larry Holmans Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Holman and son, Larry Raymond, have returned to Canyon from Port Maitland, Ontario, Canada. Holman has been piping superintendent for the Phosphoric Acid Plant there for seven months, and Mrs. Holman and Larry Raymond have spent six weeks this summer in Canada. She is a teacher in the Amarillo schools, and Larry Raymond is attending Canyon High School.

Port Maitland is described as about the same size as Canyon, and its people as similar, with a percentage of English. They are primarily protestant in religion with the Presbyterian and United Churches most prominent. There are no new housing developments. The houses are mostly of two story construction, old, but warm.

Heating is by natural gas, and oil fields were developed in that area in 1935. Uranium and a power plant for aluminum also add to the industry of the region.

The climate is wet and somewhat colder than that of the Panhandle, with an occasional drop in temperature to thirty below zero in the winter.

Short summers limit the growing seasons; however, vegetables, and fruits, such as peaches, cherries and berries are procuded in abundance. Meat is sold in markets much as it was here a number of years ago, and the fruits and vegetables are displayed in open markets.

Since the town is bordered by Lake Ontario on one side and the Grand River on the other, fishing of all kinds is to be found. Hunting is good during the winter, also.

Fertilizer and certain ingredients of cow feed are manufactured by the Phosphoric Acid Plant from ores which are shipped to Canada from Florida. Transportation between the United States and Canada is by both rail and ship.

Mother-in-law Club Will Meet

Members of the Palo Duro Mother-in-Law Club will hold their first meeting of the fall Friday at the home of Mrs. Rae Walters.

It will begin at 3 p.m.

She urges all members to be present at this time.

Baptist Minister Completes 10 Years of Service Here

As an expression of gratitude and appreciation for the ten years of service by the pastor, Dr. Strauss Atkinson, the week, August 27-September 3, was set aside by members of the First Baptist Church as "Pastor Appriciation Week."

The week began with an ice cream supper sponsored by the Training Union, and closed with a family dinner in Fellowship Hall following the Sunday morning worship service. Other days were designated as Card Day, Children's Day, and on Saturday ten red roses were sent to the Atkinsons, one for each year of their residence in Canyon.

Ten years ago this week, Strauss and Gertrude Atkinson and their two daughters, Lynn and Mayla, arrived in Canyon where he was to serve as pastor of the First Baptist Church. He had served in a similar position in Kermit before coming here.

The pastor was reared in Littlefield, and attended Hardin-Simmons University where he received his bachelor's degree. He also studied at the Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, and in 1956 was awarded an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Wayland Baptist College, Plainview.

Lynn is now Mrs. Dale Cain of Floydada, and Mayla will be enrolled as a senior at West Texas State College this fall. Tracie Lynn, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Cain arrived June 23, to make the Atkinsons grandparents.

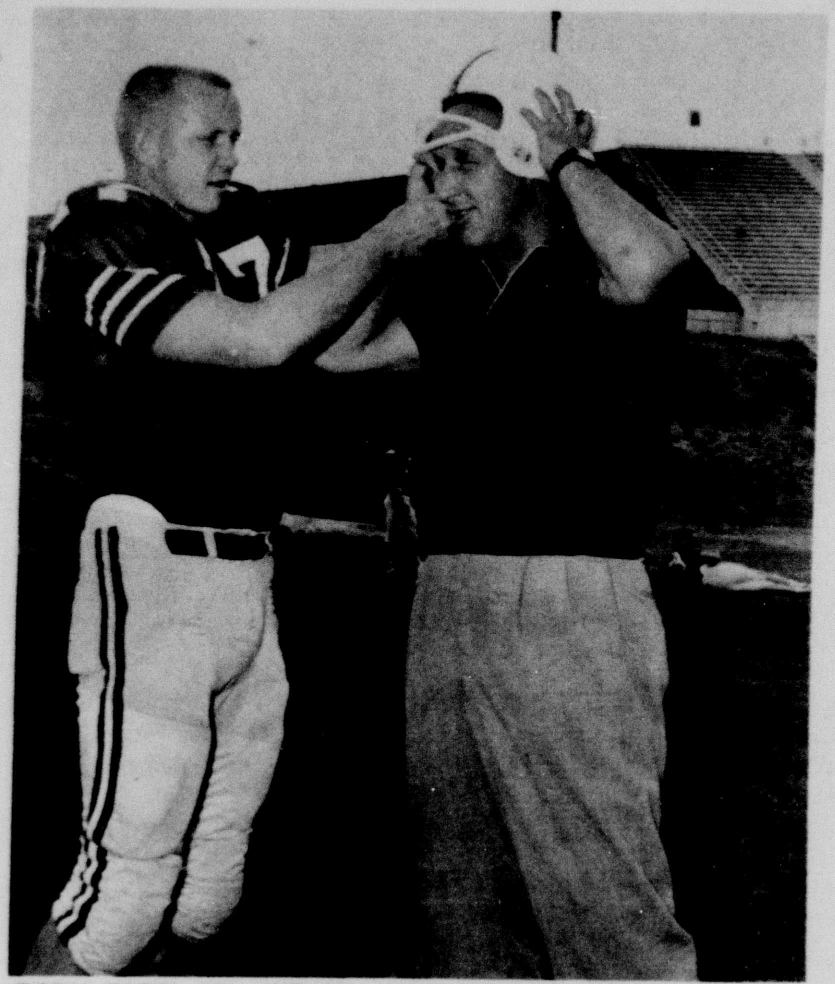
THE REV. AND MRS. ATKINSON

In 1951, the church had a total membership of 1164. The Sunday School averaged 475 in attendance, the Training Union averaged 192, and the total gifts were $40,350. That year 32 baptisms and 147 additions were reported.

Total membership now stands at 1641, with a Sunday School average attendance of 588, and a Training Union average of 180. There have been 46 baptisms, and 105 additions by letter so far this year. Total gifts last year were $117,600.

In addition to this growth, much has been added to the church property in the past ten years. The auditorium has been completely remodeled, the organ was purchased, the education building was erected, several new departments and classrooms have been added in the old building and the auditorium has been air-conditioned. Most recent improvements include the addition of the sixth nursery department, and the paving of the parking lot north of the main building.

Dory Funk Says Wrestling Is Serious Business



DORY FUNK SR. AND JR., both excellent athletes, are shown above at a recent West Texas Buffalo practice session. The senior member is a professional wrestler and Dory Jr. plays tackle for the Buff team.

Professional wrestling, like any other professional sport, is a serious business, according to Dory Funk, North American Heavyweight Champion.

Funk, who also farms near Umbarger, said wrestling has received black marks due to freaks in the ring, but it is now a serious business.

"We have a lot of showmanship going on in the ring but can you think of a professional sport that doesn't rely on showmanship?" he asked.

"It's just like your pro football. There's a world of difference in a high school game and your pro games. And the Harlem Globetrotters, just because they put on a big show, you can't say they are unable to play basketball."

Funk wrestles an average of three times a week. Matches take him from Canada to Florida. Recently he received a 100,000 mile card from United Airlines. He chalked up this mileage in an eight-month period.

Funk, a naturalized Texan, is a native of Indiana. There he attended the University of Indiana and played football, boxed and wrestled.

After the end of the war he began professional wrestling and came through Amarillo several times on the circuit.

In 1949, Cal Farley of Boys Ranch, asked him to stay at the ranch three months as superintendent. Funk took the temporary job and when the time elapsed to three and one-half years, he decided to quit and spend more time with his wrestling.

"I consider the time at Boys Ranch my most productive period," Funk recalled.

After leaving the ranch Funk decided to stay in this country and bought the farm at Umbarger.

"They told me it would take wearing out one pair of shoes and it did," he said. "We've lived here ever since.

Funk does about half of his wrestling in the Panhandle area. He is also doing quite a bit of work in Canada.

"I like to be here every weekend during football season to see my boys," he pointed out. Dory Jr. plays for West Texas State College and Terry plays for Canyon High School.

He is presently wrestling in Canada twice a week and flies back for the weekend games. He is also busy at the Amarillo ring.

In addition to wrestling, Funk finds time to farm and care for a herd of cattle and also produces a weekly television show. This show has gone on for eight years.

The show is a "live" show if at all possible. "Occasionally I have to tape part of it, but I'd much rather be there," he said. It is on channel 7 every Sunday at 12:30 p.m.

In discussing wrestling Funk said it is a lot of hard work and a person can be seriously injured. He has suffered a broken leg, dislocated shoulder and has had about 50 stitches taken in his head.

Some people question the grueling pace of professional wrestling.

"It's easy to explain," Funk said. "We have to stay in physical condition for it. Let's go back to football for a minute. The 155 pound halfbacks are hit time and again by heavy linemen but bounce back up for more punishment. An average man would be seriously injured if hit by a lineman. It's the same way with wrestling.

"We know how to take the falls, break the holds and take the punishment. The average man would be injured.

When asked about certain questionable holds Funk gladly demonstrated. The "sleeper" works. After another demonstration or two, the writer had complete confidence in any hold.

Some of them, though they look quite simple render a man completely helpless. "When the fans see this, they sometimes think we are faking, but it is not true."

Funk said that occasionally people will come up to him and call him a fake or a ham. "This deeply hurts me," he said. "It's the same thing as calling a man a thief."

"We've done a lot to clean up wrestling and are still working on it. I guess the wrestlers do more work on this than anyone else."

Funk's title carries him throught the country and always guarantees an interesting match. "It's a rough job to keep it," he said.

There are three main titles recognized by the wrestling commission: World Champion, North American Champion and World Junior Heavyweight Champion.

Present holder of World Champion title is Buddy Rogers.

"I've wrestled him twice and have defeated him both times," Funk said. "It was before he held the title and he will try to avoid another match with me now that he holds the title."

Another difficult block to the match is the fact that most wrestlers do their own booking.

"I would say that 80 per cent take care of their own management," Funk said. "I do mine and all my acquaintances do, too."

Funk says that fans can sometimes be a cause of trouble.

"In Canada, fans are very partisan and it can lead to out-of-ring fights when you defeat a Canadian."

"I came out of the ring one night and someone stuck a knife in my stomach. Then, another time I was wrestling there and walked into the dressing room after the match and one of the fellows asked me what was in my leg. I looked down and a knife was sticking in it.

"It's always a rough job leaving the ring there. The fans stay after you until you get in the dressing room."

Funk, who is 40-years-old, says the best years for a professional wrestler are from 40 to 45. "I don't plan to stay that long, though," he commented. "I'll probably retire in three years."

Retirement plans include a long rest on the farm at Umbarger and then perhaps an expanded agricultural program.

But at the moment he is concentrating on a match tonight in Amarillo. He is facing Tony Borne there and has complete confidence about the fight. "He has a few tricks, but there's a remedy for each of them."

Mrs. Hattie Brasuel has returned from Lubbock where she visited in the home of her son, Alton Brasuel, and family.

MRS. ZULA USERY

One Canyon teacher has just completed an interesting and profitable summer. Mrs. Zula Usery, fourth grade teacher, has just returned from New Jersey, a journey of 2,015 miles, where she has spent the last three summers working in Trail Blazer Girls Camp.

This camp extends over a 1,000 acre tract of heavy forest, lake, and mountain region in the northwest corner of the state. ''This is an ideal spot for a camp site,'' says Mrs. Usery. The six small camps for boys and the ten small camps for girls are located near, and on opposite sides of the beautiful Lake Mashipacong, which affords fishing, boating, swimming, and canoeing for both counselors and campers. It was on this lake that Mrs. Usery got her first lessons in literally paddling her own canoe.

Before the camp opened for the two-weeks counselor training period, ''old staff'' was asked to report for duty early to make ready for ''new staff'' members. This meant that Mrs. Usery arrived at camp June 15 instead of June 21 when the training program actually began. Mrs. Usery feels that through pre-camp-conference she has gained some of the most beneficial educational experiences which she has ever known. It was through this training that she gained an understanding of the camp, its physical setup, equipment needed, and necessary camp routine. Through the conference the personnel, made up of peoples from many nations: France, Germany, India, Jamaica, Switzerland, Korea, and America both black and white learn to work cooperatively, each lending his or her skills, abilities, and talents to a common cause, that of preparing themselves for life in a community with oneness of direction, a harmonious atmosphere without tension, and a true spirit of concern for one's neighbor. Working with these peoples of different colutral background gave one his first insight into the true meaning of these lines from one of the favorite camp songs:

No man stands alone.
Each man's joy is joy to me,
Each man's grief is my own.
We need one another;
So I will defend
Each man as my brother;
Each man as my friend.

Mrs. Usery's job at camp was a many faceted one. She served as relief counselor on occasions, did some of the camp buying, drove the station wagon to take campers, or any camp personnel to the doctor or to the hospital, or on any other call of emergency or necessity. She was in charge of all linens and general supplies for the ten small camps which make up Trail Blazer Girls Camp. When show night for counselors rolled around Mrs. Usery would load twelve or thirteen young women counselors into the station wagon and take off for Port Jervis, New York, or Milford, Pennsylvania. On cooks' and and kitchen boys' days off she had the pleasant duty of driving them into town and picking them up again.

Quoting Mrs. Usery, ''Camping affords plenty of hard work for all, many problems, much fun, some of which is hilarious. One example was the night the raccoon awakened me sniffing around my round-to shelter. When I shined my flashlight on him and tried to scat him out, he grabbed my slacks and made off across the woods in a dead run. The attraction was a small piece of fudge in one of the pockets. He had no notion of giving up the candy, and I was in no mood to give up my slacks. We had a hot race. I won, even if I were in bare feet and pajama tail!''

The day the campers arrive, excitement runs high throughout the entire camp. This is just as true for the August camp as for the July camp. Everything has been made ready for our ninety guests; girls ranging in age from eight to sixteen, of every color, race and creed. A red letter day reigns in kitchen and dining hall. These youngsters, especially those who have come to camp for the first time, begin an entirely new life. For some of them it is their first time to sit down to a table for a meal. Some have never set foot on soil before. To some the dark deep silence of the forest, the unfamiliar night sounds, the absence of bright lights and walls of buildings become frightening to them at first. The trained counselors help them to overcome these fears by showing love, giving them a feeling of security; keeping them busy doing new things for their own comfort and that of the camp group.

These children are taught many things, among which are to cook; set and wait tables properly; gather wood; build fires; plan meals that are well balanced; swim, hike, do crafts in clay, wood, leather, and cord. They do creative writing; drawing, nature study in nature at its best where they are numerous varities of trees, flowers, and wildlife so gentle that it has no fear of people. These campers learn to saddle and ride donkeys; also harness and drive donkeys. Another phase of their training for living is the religious side which is by no means neglected. Each Sunday morning, rain or shine, every child goes to the church of his choice by he Prostestant, Catholic or Jew.

It is the hope and the aim of the camp that during this training period of working and playing together, the experience and knowhow gained here shall be carried back into the homes where a better understanding, and a higher standard of living may be attained.

These children are sent by different welfare agencies of New York City, one of which is The Church of All Nations. This camp is wholly dependent upon donations for support.

Mrs. Usery feels that the high moral standards of this camp were instigated and are upheld by another Canyon woman, Lois Goodrich, a W.T. graduate and a former teacher in Canyon Public Schools, who for several years has been executive director of Trail Blazer Camps. Miss Goodrich is nationally, and internationally, known as one of the leading camp authorities of today. Her book on decentralized camping was published in 1959.

Many other Canyon women have added their contributions and services to this camp, formerly known as Life Camp. To name a few: Ethel Ruth Collins Spring, daughter of Mrs. T.W. Collins, Nancy Strain Petruccione, Sarah Thompson, Marylin Carruth, W.T. students Linda West and Margaret Roundtree. Also Mrs. L.M. Cousins who spent two summers as dietitian for Boys Camp, and who introduced Mrs. Usery to Trail Blazer Camps.

(Editor's Note: ''Summer at Camp'', a story of Trail Blazer Camps, was published in Look Magazine, Sept. 12.)

EXPERIENCE

KEEPING UP WITH THE ARTS

Mary Caballero

There seems to be many secrets flying about these days. I'm just as anxious as can be to find out about these things that are kept under cover! In Laura V. Hamner's column on Sunday, she writes about an ''Amarillo man who will have a book published this fall.'' The writer and the name of the book cannot be told as this time! Wonder why all the suspense?

Then last week, I heard a very interesting rumor and told that it might still be a secret. This secret concerns a well-known Amarillo writer who has a book chosen by the movie industry for a film. Well, secrets are fun and maybe in the next few weeks ''all'' will be exposed.

In West Berlin ballet fans have lost their hearts to Jerome Robbins and his Ballets: usa. ''When the American troupe opened on August 25, each day of the six day stand was met with wild applause.

During their present stay, the dancers are presenting two programs one with ''Interplay,'' ''Events,'' ''Afternoon of a Faun'' and ''The Concert'' and the other ''The Moves,'' ''The Cage'' and ''N.Y. Export OP. Jazz.''

A West Berlin paper BZ described the troupe as a ''community in which each dancer is a solist.''

America seem to know that international understanding has always come through the arts.

Edith Honholt who writes Tele-Scope says that ''women will be conspicuous by their absence next season on the regular TV series, but they will still merit special attention. Ingrid Thulin, one of the most noted actresses in the stock company in Ingnar Bergman, the noted Swedish director, will star in a live adaption of ''Intermezzo'' on Theater 62 in November (NBC). Jean Pierre Aumont will co-star. Judy Garland, missing from television for six years, will star on her own television special in the Spring (CBS). Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin will be her guests.

Even the documentaries have discovered women. NBC will present a program on ''The Story of a Debutante'' and Project 20 will focus on American women through the years in specials scheduled for next season.

M. Sgt. and Mrs. Earl F. Hadley and daughters, Pamela, Evelyn and Meredith have returned from a vacation trip to Oklahoma City, and Lawton, Oklahoma, and to Independence, Kansas, where they visited with relatives and friends.

Eagles Smash Tigers 50- 6

Canyon Eagles roared over the Slaton Tigers 50-6 in the gridiron season opener at Buffalo Stadium Friday night.

Harry Lisle, wearing No. 10 jersey for the Eagles, was a common sight in Tiger territory as he carried across four of the touchdowns.

A one-sided battle from the first, the Eagles never lost control of the field. First score of the game came on the second play following the opening kickoff.

Elmer Oberst, fullback for the Eagles, hit the Tiger line for five yards and Lisle ran 55 yards on a bootleg play to pay dirt on the next play.

Oberst kicked the extra point to bring game score to 7-0.

Slaton could not move the ball after receiving their kickoff and again Lisle whizzed through the Tigers on a 59-yard run to pay dirt. Only two minutes, 32 seconds of the first quarter were up when the second Eagle tally was marked.

Try for the extra point failed.

The Tigers bounded back after receiving a kickoff and Kelly Bounds scored on a 50 yard pass thrown by Ronny Jones for Slaton's first and only score.

After gaining control of the ball again, Canyon fumbled to Slaton and regained the ball on Slaton's first pass play. Doug Ward, making the interception, was sent out for an Eagle toss on the next play and netted another six points on a 25-yard pass.

Just before the first quarter gun sounded, the Eagles took a Slaton punt and carried it back to the Tiger 40. On the second play Richard Green made a 19-yard aerial to Wayne Rutherford for Canyon's fourth score in the first period.

Action in the second quarter slowed and Canyon made only two touchdowns.

Again Lisle slipped through Tiger territory on a 62-yard pass from Davis Price for his third tally. This brought game score to 32-6.

Following the kickoff Slaton made on of their few first downs on a Canyon penalty. The Eagles struck back, gaining the ball on a fumble. Then with a series of hard-hitting drives they marched to within 18 yards of another score.

From the 18 Doug Ward started the trip to the goal line and hit trouble on the 7. A quick lateral to Richard Green broke the Tigers' back.

Score was then 38-6.

Just before the end of the first half the Eagles took a Tiger punt and started another score drive but the clock ended it.

The third quarter went scoreless as both teams began to battle for points. Slaton was stopped within 10 yards of the goal and Canyon took over and carried out to mid-field in a series of plays.

At the beginning of the fourth quarter the Tigers held the Eagles and took the ball on a punt. They chalked up another first down on a ground play. They followed this with a pass play which blew up in their faces.

Lisle grabbed the toss on his own 8-yard line and scampered all the way back for another Eagle tally and his fourth.

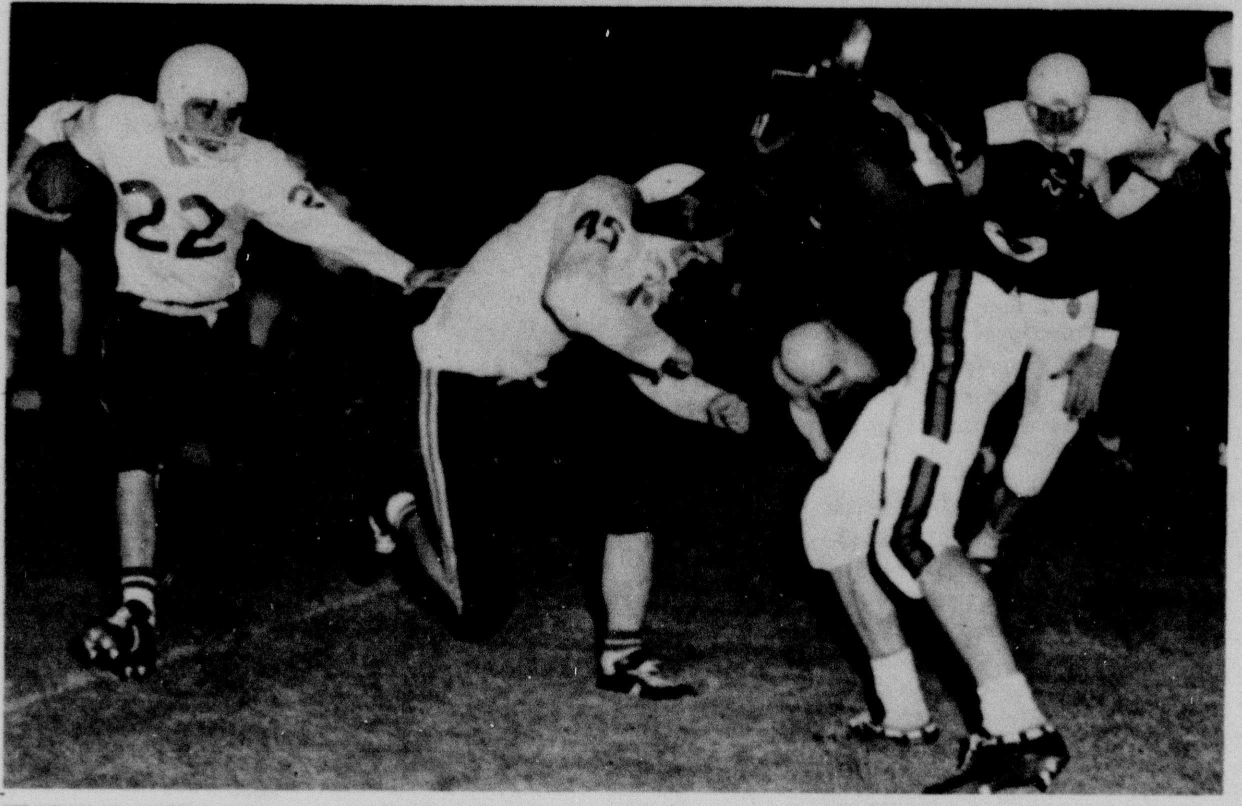
Score stood at 44-6.

In final minutes of play the Eagles began an aerial attack intent on rounding out the score at an even 50.

Two of the tries were in vain but the third counted for a 50-yard toss and the 50-6 game score.

Price threw the final TD to Wayne Rutherford.

With the first game of the season a gruitful victory for the Eagles, spirits are high for the Friday match with Hereford. They will meet the Whitefaces on foreign ground at 8 p.m.



STRIKING OUT for pay dirt is Richard Green, No. 22 and one of the quarter backs for the Eagles. Blocking for him is Elmer Oberst, No. 45 and fullback for the team. The Eagles downed the Slaton Tigers 50-6 in the season opener.

GAIL COX, NO. 35 for the Eagles, did much of the ground work in Friday's match against the Slaton Tigers. He plays in the halfback position. Shown at left is Ralph Cabe, No. 60.

Deanna Stocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Stocker of Umbarger is visiting with her parents. She has completed basic training in the Waafs at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, and will report to Sheppard Field, Wichita Falls, September 11, for further training.

The claim for refund on federal tax on gasoline used on farms should be made this month. The period covered by this claim is from July 1, 1960 through June 30, 1961. This claim will be allowed only if filed on or before October 2, 1961. Only one claim a year may be filed.

Hogs, beef cattle and calves showed good price gains during August. During the month hogs gained 40¢ per cwt, beef cattle 60¢ and calves $1.00. These contrasted with losses of 70¢ for lambs, sheep prices being the lowest for August since 1942 and lambs the lowest since 1945.

To participate in the barley program a farmer must divert at least 20 per cent of his 1959-60 barley base and at the same time not increase his corn or grain sorghum acreage. The diverted acres must be put to a conservation use. Payments for the first 20 per cent of diverted acreage will be figured on 50 per cent of the normal barley yield on the farm. Additional acreage may also be taken out of production at a higher rate of payment.

If the producer chooses, he may plant all or a part of his diverted barley acreage to one or more of the following oil-seed crops: Castor Beans, guar, safflower, sunflower, or sesame. By doing this he will be passing up conservation Payments. He will, however be eligible for barley support price.

An estimated 45,000 irrigation wells irrigate 5,000,000 acres of farmland in the High Plains of Texas. The High Plains area produces about one-third of the world's total grain sorphum used for feed, about one-sixth of the nation's cotton and enjoys one of the highest standards of living in the world. Our two assets are an abundance of good fertile soil and good quality underground water. Our big problem is that we are using up our accumulated deposit of underground water at a much more rapid rate at which we receive natural replenishment to the deposit. To allow "Tailwater" to escape from land into bar-ditches is a violation of the rules of the Underground Water Conservation District and is also a waste of our most precious resource.

A new publication entitled "Buildings and Euipment for Swine" has just been released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Within a few days I shall have a good supply of this modern bulletin. Hog production is increasing in Randall County. Some late work at the swine testing center at West Texas State College proves that a pound of pork can be produced from 3 pounds of feed. By using modern farrowing, growing and finishing equipment, our producers can make a market for some of our extra grain sorghum and return a steady income for good management practices.

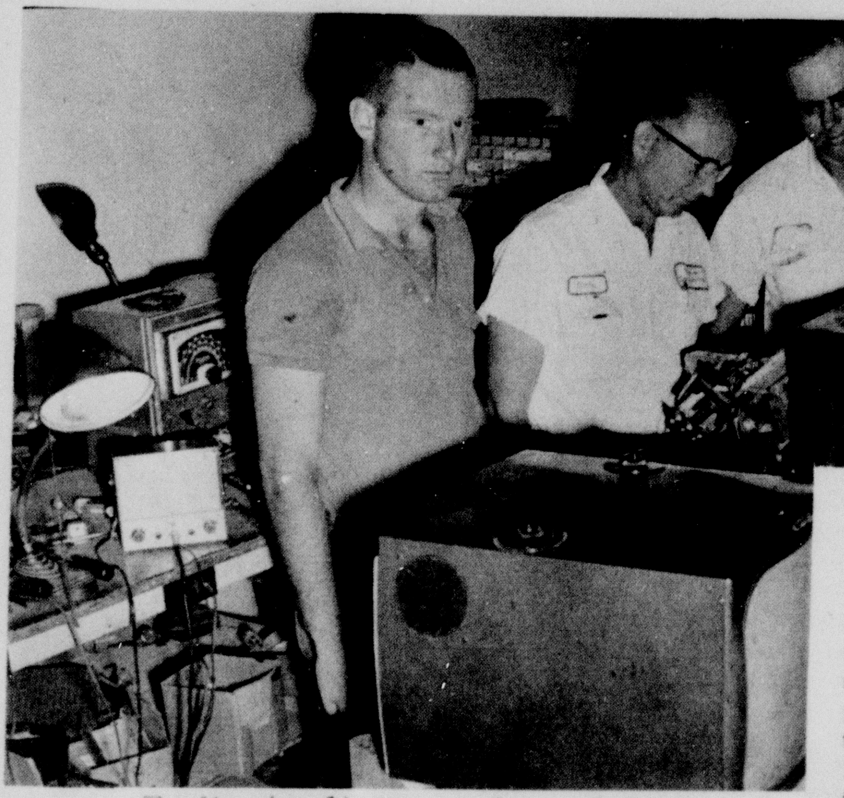
CANYON BUSINESS REVIEW and BUYER'S GUIDE



Radio Appliance, One of the Largest in the Panhandle

This week the Canyon News reviews Radio Appliance company in Canyon. Radio Appliance is owned by Dale Killingsworth of 2405 9th Avenue. Radio Appliance was founded in 1946 by Bing Crosby and Dale joined the firm as a partner that same year. The store was first located in the Buffalo Shopping Center and remained there until April of 1958 when it moved to it's present location on the east side of the square. This past month, Killingsworth announced the purchase of complete ownership of the business. Radio Appliance is the franchised dealer for R.C.A. Whirlpool appliances, RCA Victor Television and Stereo, Norge Appliances, and Packard-Bell Television and Stereo. One of the best known features of the firm is its service department. It is operated by 2 bonded techinicans, Killingsworth and Jim Carter. It is said to be one of the largest, best equipped shops in the entire Panhandle. Dale states, "All our work is guaranteed, fast service is our by-word!" He went on to say they advertise one day service on most Radio or TV repair jobs. Prior to World War II, Killingsworth worked for United AirCraft in Bridgeport, Conneticutt, where he handled experimental electronic equipment.....after the war he attended the General Electric TV Electronics school and the RCA color TV school. Radio Appliance also does a large volume business in appliance repair, "If we can't fix it, throw it away", they assure you. The store is open 8:00 A.M. through 5:30 P.M. 6 days a week. In addition to Dale and Jim Carter, the staff includes Dale's son, Jimmy Killingsworth. Killingsworth lives at 2405 9th avenue with his wife Wilda, and children, Jimmy, Sherry, Leslie and Kim. "A CLEANER KITCHEN IS IMPORTANT TO ME. MY ELECTRIC DISHWASHER AND DISPOSER GIVE ME THE KITCHEN SANITATION I WANT"

says Mrs. Lee Bell,

OF 4617 BUFFALO TRAIL, AN AMARILLO REGISTERED NURSE

You'd expect a registered nurse to insist on cleanliness, but isn't that what you, too, want in your kitchen? Of course it is, and clean electricity helps you get it. An electric dishwasher washes dishes really clean — sanitary clean. And, an electric disposer gets rid of unwanted food immediately. These two aids to kitchen cleanliness are used fully by Mrs. Bell — and her kitchen shows it — it's really clean.

Electric kitchen aids Mrs. Bell in devoting time to her two lovely children, Patty, age 5, and Randy, age 7. With sanitary electric dishwashing, colds are few and far between in the Bell household.

This electric disposer gets rid of food waste, easy and efficiently — helps give Mrs. Bell the clean kitchen her nursing training insists on.
